

Hello [Individual or Organization name],

Are you a gender advisor, data specialist, or other development professional? Do you seek to utilize gender data as a tool for impactful change? If so, then please accept this invitation to join our conference: The Gender Data Impact and Innovation (GDII) Series.

I'm Marion Comi-Morog, an instructional designer at Techange. I am very excited to announce that Facebook's course "Gender Data 101" will be extended into a 2-day series of interactive workshops, networking events, and expert panels -- all with the aim to fully understand, use, and share gender data. With both live and asynchronous events, this unique conference will allow participants to join from anywhere around the globe to identify current problems and actionable steps towards our goal: impact. Be prepared to engage with such questions as:

- What does gender equity look like in your organization?
- How does one make inclusive assessments in the humanitarian sector?
- What does feminist data governance look like?
- What frameworks and tools can help make our development efforts more data-informed and equitable?

Clear your calendar for February 4th and March 8th, 2021 and RSVP here (link "here")! The Impact and Innovation Series platform will open for registered participants on January 28, 2021 – the week before the conference kicks off – to give you access to an agenda of high-level panels, engaging talks, facilitated workshops, and group networking.

We look forward to discussing, questioning, and engaging with you.

Sincerely,

Marion Comi-Morog + the GDII Team
